

Dinner by the cubie

If you've dealt with the logistics of feeding a baby while holding down a day job you'll know all about freezing pureed food and breast milk. We went haywire on this with No 1, filling ice-block trays with unappetising cubes of stuff, and abandoned it in favour of sense and sanity by No 3. Melbourne mother Alex Wardle has come up with a new kind of ice tray, called Qubies (the name, it seems, a way to the slogan: "for boobies and beyond"). The silicon tray, pictured, has the dividers in the lid which portion the breast milk or food in 30ml cubes. $19.95 at www.qubies.com.au, where you'll find recipes. Feed them whatever's on the table for dinner, I say.
